Our little gopher friends were always looking for their monthly nuggets. But they grew tired of the ponzi schemes, pump & dumps, rug pulls and other bad actors they found in their burrows.

Realizing there must be a better way, the gophers wandered out of their holes in search of something that could reliably and sustainably deliver their monthly nuggets. Being sensible fellows, they ran away from anything too risky or dangerous. But, after rummaging around for a bit, they found exactly what they were looking for! A sustainable 6% APY* that's backed by real world objects.

This was much more than their "friends" over at the Beaver's Bank were offering them. Plus, they didn't have to lock up their nuggets for years like the beavers wanted.

*Sometimes our gophers find an extra nugget or two. Not always, but every once in a while….

So the gophers got to work. They started digging out the mines in search of their monthly nuggets and set up some easy to follow rules:

1.)   These gophers like shiny objects. And they love to dig! So hire them by giving them a Gopher Token for 6 months.

2.)   The gophers will use the token to buy the food and supplies they need in order to dig new tunnels and find the nuggets.

3.)   At the end of every month, the gophers pop back up from their holes and the newly found nuggets are given to the folks who gave them the token to fund their dig. However, it takes the gophers 30 days to start digging and find the nuggets. So the first nuggets may not be received until the following month; or 30-60 days depending on when the gopher token was received.

4.)   After six months, if the token giver is not happy with the gophers work, the token may be taken back from the gopher and redeemed for their original value. Redemption takes about 10 days for the gopher to return from the mine, fill in his holes and return his equipment.
